Properties of Matter

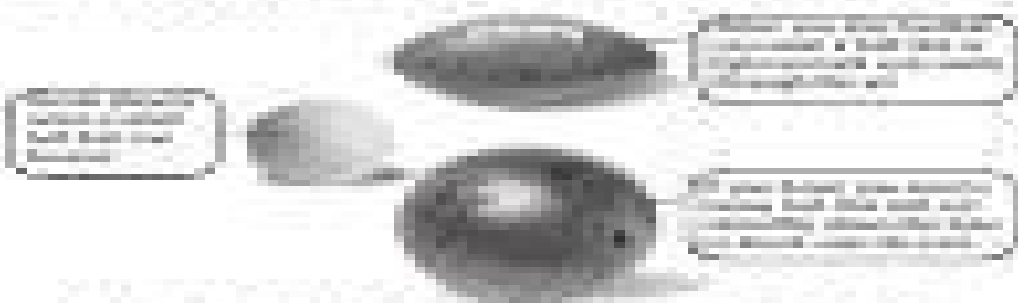

QUESTIONS

Are you able to determine, from these questions, the subject of the following chapters, and classify them into physical and chemical properties?

- Why are cooking, ironing, and cleaning physical properties?
- Why are dissolving, rusting, and burning chemical properties?

What Are Physical Properties?

Look at the table in the chapter before you and list as many physical properties as you can think of.

If physical properties of a substance can be observed without changing the identity of the substance, these are physical properties of an object. For example, you can identify an object's colour, shape, size, or weight. In general, the properties of an object are determined by the properties of the materials the object is made of.

Many of the physical properties of materials that make up objects can be measured. These properties include length, mass, volume, temperature, and the ability to conduct heat and electricity.

Some physical properties depend on how much of a material you have. In other words, a large amount of a material may have different properties from smaller amounts of the material. Other physical properties do not depend on how much of the material you have. They show that no matter how large or small a sample of material is, the particular property is always the same.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

By the end of this chapter, you should be able to:

- identify physical and chemical properties of substances
