

BIRD BEAK

adaptations

BIRD BEAKS Name: _____

Adaptations are traits that help a species survive in their environment. Each of the three species described below live in a different environment, which means that they will each have different traits that help them. Read about each of the birds to learn about how their beaks are adapted for their habitats.

Robin
Robins forage (search) for small bugs in the water. They eat watery insects, flies, and worms. Sometimes they also eat small fish. They capture these creatures by conforming to something different in the water with their beaks. Unlike anything else, they come from inside to outside, they take a slightly open to capture any prey. Sometimes robins may also catch at the water or even change their heads under water to grab prey that is deeper below the surface.

Loon
Loons are carnivorous birds whose diet consists mostly of fish. Sometimes they eat tadpoles too. To capture their prey, loons hover above from the sky and grab the unsuspecting fish or tadpoles with their beaks (the sharp edges on their beak). When it's time to eat, the loon holds the prey with one of its beaks and uses the back of the lower jaw to tear the fish off the bone with its beak.

Toucan

Hummingbird
Hummingbirds eat a lot of nectar, which is a sugary liquid that comes from flowers. They have long, thin beaks that can fit into the tiny holes of flowers to get the nectar. Their beaks are also very long and thin, which helps them hover in front of flowers and sip the nectar.

BIRD BEAKS Name: _____

Pelican
Pelicans feed mostly on fish. To catch their prey, pelicans usually hover over a school of fish from above. Then they swoop vertically to grab a single fish. Returning to the air, the pelican will shake the water out of their mouth before swallowing the fish.

Sparrow
Sparrows primarily eat small seeds and insects. These birds forage for insects for their prey by hopping on the ground. Sparrows are not concerned by being on the ground, and they will often take advantage of a bird feeder when it's around.

Toucan
The toucan is a bird that primarily feeds on fruit. These birds forage for fruit on the ground or eat it directly from trees. Their beak is long enough to reach fruit on branches that wouldn't support the full weight of their body, and it has rounded edges that help to peel fruit. It's thought that the toucan's large beak may also play a role in courting or both sexes.

Summarize your findings about each bird and its beak.

Bird Species	Food (What do they eat?)	Beak (What do they use it for?)
Woodpecker
Toucan
Hummingbird
Robin
Eagle

Woodpecker
The woodpecker's beak is strong and thin enough to enable it to be used for drilling holes in wood. In order to protect the shaft's keratin, a thick, springy shell has developed to absorb the impact of the repeated blows. The woodpecker also has a long, sticky tongue that can be used to catch insects from the holes they have drilled.

Loon
The loon is an carnivorous bird who eats insects such as grasshoppers and worms. They have also been known to eat fish, frogs, eggs, and other small birds. The loon primarily uses its long beak to probe into the water or mud for insects such as earthworms.

Diplomator
Diplomator's feed almost solely on plants, insects, and reptiles. To catch their prey, diplomator's walk slowly through water with their beak open. When they spot prey, the bird uses their beak to grab and use it to pierce the muscle that connects the shell. Some varieties of diplomator also smash the shell open before enjoying the inside.
