segments of instruction are better than longer ones and learners who actively participate in instruction learn better than those who don't. Pausing helps teachers apply these principles and create student engagement without requiring major changes in their lesson plans. With careful planning they can integrate pauses into learning sessions with ease and significantly reinforce student learning. They will also gain feedback on students' comprehension. Rice sets out the characteristics of good pauses, gives advice on how to plan them and how to introduce them to maximum effect. She provides compelling examples and concludes with a repertory of pauses readers can easily modify and apply to any discipline. This book contains a compendium of strategies that any teacher can fruitfully use to reinforce learning as well as a stepping stone to those seeking to transition to more active learning methods. It makes the case for using pauses, identifies the primary functions of pauses (focusing, refocusing, enhancing retention, or closing off the learning experience), provides research evidence from cognitive science and educational psychology, provides practical guidance for creating quick active learning breaks, distinguishes between starting, middle, and closing pauses, includes descriptions with suggested applications of 65 pauses.

It investigates how multimedia can help to assist TCSL/TCFL and explores practical effects of multimedia-assisted teaching at secondary schools in the Philippines. It addresses the psychology of TCSL/TCFL and discusses various recurring foreign graduate students' concerns when learning academic Chinese in graduate institutes in Taiwan. It examines issues of educational assessment and testing, analyzing the validity of a self-made placement test for an immigrant Chinese program as well as the psychological characteristics of adult learners and their implications for immigrant Chinese curriculum design. As foreign learners of Chinese grow exponentially, this cutting-edge read conceptualizes the educational philosophy of TCSL/TCFL as a distinctive discipline.
