Vision Attentive Technology H.M.K.K.M.B. Herath, A.G.B.P. Jayasekara, B.G.D.A. Madhusanka, 2024-12-10. This book provides a comprehensive overview of the use of vision attentive technology and artificial intelligence methodologies for functional mobility assessment in elderly populations. Vision Attentive Technology and Functional Mobility Assessment in Elderly Healthcare begins with a general introduction to vision attentive technology and its uses in the care of older people. Next, it examines functional mobility in senior populations and offers a critique of the methods used today for evaluation. The authors then present several artificial intelligence approaches and vision aware systems used for screening age-related diseases such as Parkinson's disease and sarcopenia. The book also presents the difficulties and possibilities of using visual attentive technology to identify functional impairments caused by aging. This book would be helpful to researchers in the field of healthcare, especially those interested in using technology to enhance patient outcomes. Geriatricians, physical therapists, and occupational therapists who treat older patients will also benefit from reading this book. It will also be helpful to readers who are studying biomedical engineering, artificial intelligence, and healthcare.

Potential Uses of Blockchain by the U.S. Department of Defense Victoria Adams, 2020. To continue its standing as a world leader in technological innovation, the United States needs to engage with policymakers, the private sector, and academia to promote the research and development of blockchain technology. While China and Russia have invested millions of dollars worth of research and development (R&D) into the technology, the policymakers of our country are still trying to understand what the technology is, and our regulators are still trying to enforce old laws on the new technology. This paper highlights existing use cases of blockchain or more broadly speaking distributed ledger technologies DLT which the U S Department of Defense DoD can study to determine how to best implement its applications
