Reform of evidence in sexual offences prosecutions: Law Commission consultation paper

Simon Croft QC*

Introduction

The Law Commission has published a consultation paper on reforming the law of evidence in sexual offences prosecutions. The Commission has identified a number of areas for reform, including the admissibility of evidence of a complainant's previous sexual history, the admissibility of evidence of a complainant's previous sexual history in cases involving a defendant's consent, and the admissibility of evidence of a defendant's previous sexual history in cases involving a complainant's consent.

The Commission's proposals are contained in the paper, which is available on the Law Commission's website. The Commission has also published a summary of its proposals, which is available on the Law Commission's website.

Human Rights in the UK and the Influence of Foreign Jurisprudence Hélène Tyrrell, 2018-09-20 Longlisted for the 2022 Inner Temple Main Book Prize Human Rights in the UK and the Influence of Foreign Jurisprudence represents the first major empirical study of the use of foreign jurisprudence at the UK Supreme Court This book focuses on the patterns of use and non use of rulings from foreign domestic courts in human rights cases before the UK Supreme Court Results are drawn from quantitative and qualitative research presenting data from the first eight years of Supreme Court activity The evidence includes interviews with active and former members of the senior judiciary as well as a focus group including some of the Supreme Court Judicial Assistants It is argued that foreign jurisprudence is more intimately woven into the fabric of judicial reasoning and serves a wider range of functions than the term persuasive authority might imply Foreign jurisprudence is used mainly as a heuristic device providing judges with a fresh analytical lens Foreign jurisprudence is also important when interpreting a common legislative scheme supporting dialogue between the Supreme Court and supranational courts such as the European Court of Human Rights The perspectives offered by foreign jurisprudence can also support a stronger conception of domestic human rights In these ways this book addresses a broader political question about the source of human rights in the UK

Transforming the Police

Charles M. Katz, Edward R. Maguire, 2020-01-17 Policing in the United States is at a crossroads decisions made at this juncture are crucial With the emergence of evidence based policing police leaders can draw on research when making choices about how to police their communities Who will design the path forward and what will be the new standards for policing This book brings together two qualified groups to lead the discussion academics and experienced police professionals The School of Criminology and Criminal Justice at Arizona State University recruited faculty with expertise in policing and police research This volume draws on that expertise to examine 13 specific areas in policing Each chapter presents an issue and provides background before reviewing the available research on potential solutions and recommending specific reform measures Response essays written by a current or former police leader follow each chapter and reflect on the recommendations in the chapter The 13 chapters and response essays present new thinking about the police their challenges and the reforms police agencies should consider adopting Policy makers practitioners educators researchers students and anyone interested in the future of policing will find valuable information about the benefits of adopting evidence based policing leading strategic crime control efforts instituting procedural justice to enhance police legitimacy reducing use of force combatting racially biased policing establishing civilian oversight implementing a body worn camera program creating sentinel event reviews developing police university collaborations facilitating organizational justice in police departments improving officer health and wellness handling protests and increasing the effectiveness of police responses to sexual assault

Archbold, 1991 A War on Terror? Marianne Wade, Almir Maljevic, 2009-11-05 Marianne Wade and Almir Maljevi Although the worries about terrorism paled in comparison to the economic crisis as a topic during the last US election one can find plenty of grounds to assume that they remain issue number one in the minds of politicians in Europe As the German houses of Parliament prepare to call in the mediation committee in the discussion of legislation which would provide the Federal Police thus far mandated purely with the post facto investigation of crime with powers to act to prevent acts of terrorism Spain s struggle with ETA and the British Government licks its wounds after a resounding defeat of its latest anti terrorist proposals by the House of Lords one cannot but wonder whether post 9 11 the Europeans are not even more concerned with terrorism than their US counterparts A look at media reports legislative and judicial activities in either Britain or Germany clearly underlines that those two countries are deeply embroiled in anti terrorist activity Can it be that Europe is embroiled in the War on Terror constantly providing for new arms in this conflict Or is it a refusal to participate in the War on Terror that fuels a constant need for Parliaments to grapple with the subject begrudgingly conceding one increasingly draconian measure after the other The question as to where Europe stands in the War on Terror is a fascinating one but one which is difficult to answer

Policing Hate Crime Gail Mason, Jane Maree Maher, Jude McCulloch, Sharon Pickering, Rebecca Wickes, Carolyn McKay, 2017-03-16 In a contemporary setting of increasing social division and marginalisation Policing Hate Crime interrogates the complexities of prejudice motivated crime and effective policing practices Hate crime has become a barometer for contemporary police relations with vulnerable and marginalised communities But how do police effectively lead conversations with such communities about problems arising from prejudice Contemporary police are expected to be active agents in the pursuit of social justice and human rights by stamping out prejudice and group based animosity At the same time police have been criticised in over policing targeted communities as potential perpetrators as well as under policing these same communities as victims of crime Despite this history the demand for impartial law enforcement requires police to change their engagement with targeted communities and kindle trust as priorities in strengthening their response to hate crime Drawing upon a research partnership between police and academics this book entwines current law enforcement responses with key debates on the meaning of hate crime to explore the potential for misunderstandings of hate crime between police and communities and illuminates ways to overcome communication difficulties This book will be important reading for students taking courses in hate crime as well as victimology policing and crime and community Computers and Law ,2000
