

Chapter 3 Outline (Review This For The Test!)

Introduction. Migration captures the interest of geographers because it is so fundamentally geographic. The act of migrating affects both the place of origin and the migrant's destination. Geographers are interested in how and why people migrate.

Key Issue 1: Where Are Migrants Distributed?

Nineteenth-century geographer E.G. Ravenstein's "laws" are the basis for contemporary geographic migration study. The "laws" are organized into three groups that help us understand where and why migration occurs. These "laws" are mentioned throughout the chapter.

Geographer Wilbur Zelensky identified a migration transition, which consists of changes in a society comparable to those in the demographic transition. International migrants typically leave countries in stage 2 of the demographic transition for stage 3 and 4 countries. Internal migration is more important for countries in stages 3 and 4.

International and Internal Migration Migration is divided into two types: international and internal. International migrants may be voluntary or forced. While international migration gathers a lot of attention, most migration is internal within a country. There are two types of internal migration. Interregional migration is the movement from one region of a country to another. The movement within the same region of the country is called intra-regional migration.

International Migration Patterns Global migration patterns reveal that most people migrate from developing countries to developed ones. International migrants may be voluntary or forced. Asia, Latin America, and Africa have net out-migration while Europe and North America experience net in-migration. While other countries have higher percentages of foreign-born residents, the United States has the largest number, with 40 million foreign-born residents.

U.S. Immigration: Seventeenth and Eighteenth Centuries Three distinct eras of migration are observed in the United States. First, from the late 1700s to 1840, most migrants were from Europe, mainly Great Britain and forced migrants from Africa. All of the colonies in the United States were established on the Atlantic Coast.

U.S. Immigration: Mid-Nineteenth to Early Twentieth Century From 1840 until the outbreak of World War I, the source regions for new migrants coincided with the Industrial Revolution diffusing from its hearth in Great Britain. The majority of the immigrants that came to the United States in the second half of the nineteenth century came from Germany, Ireland, and Scandinavia. In the early twentieth century many of the immigrants came from Eastern and Southern Europe.

U.S. Immigration: Late Twentieth to Early Twenty-first Century After World War II most new migrants to the United States came from Asia and Latin America. Asians and Latin Americans have come to the United States in recent decades after many of their countries entered stage 2 of the demographic transition.

Key Issue 2: Where Do People Migrate Within a Country?

Migration between Regions of the United States The history of interregional migration in the United States was largely an east-to-west phenomenon with the exception of an early start in California. More recently the center of U.S. population has been moving slowly southward, but interregional migration in the twenty-first century is relatively small.

Migration between Regions in the Two Largest Countries The world's largest countries in land area are Russia and Canada. Interregional migration has been an important means to opening up regions of these large countries for economic development. Migration in Canada was voluntary and in Russia during the Soviet Era it was sometimes forced.

Migration Between Regions in China and Brazil The world's largest countries in land area other than Russia, Canada, and the United States are China and Brazil. Government policies encourage interregional migration in Brazil by moving the capital of the Brazil from the densely populated southern coastal city of Rio de Janeiro to the sparsely populated interior city of Brasilia. The Chinese have restricted the migration of people from the interior to the coast.
