If physical properties of substances are observed without changing the identity of the substance, observed the properties of an object are called its physical properties. For example, you can identify an object's color, texture, shape, size, or weight. In general, the properties of an object are determined by the properties of the particles the object is made of.

Many of the physical properties of materials that make up objects can be measured. These properties include density, hardness, magnetism, and the ability to conduct heat and electricity.

Some physical properties depend on how much of a material you have. In other words, a large amount of a material may have different properties than a smaller amount of the material. Other physical properties do not depend on how much of the material you have. They show that no matter how large or small something is, it has the same physical property or always the same
