Learning from Good and Bad Data Philip D. Laird, 2012-12-06 This monograph is a contribution to the study of the identification problem the problem of identifying an item from a known class using positive and negative examples This problem is considered to be an important component of the process of inductive learning and as such has been studied extensively In the overview we shall explain the objectives of this work and its place in the overall fabric of learning research Context Learning occurs in many forms the only form we are treating here is inductive learning roughly characterized as the process of forming general concepts from specific examples Computer Science has found three basic approaches to this problem Select a specific learning task possibly part of a larger task and construct a computer program to solve that task Study cognitive models of learning in humans and extrapolate from them general principles to explain learning behavior Then construct machine programs to test and illustrate these models xi XII PREFACE Formulate a mathematical theory to capture key features of the induction process This work belongs to the third category The various studies of learning utilize training examples data in different ways The three principal ones are Similarity based or empirical learning in which a collection of examples is used to select an explanation from a class of possible rules Developments in Applied Artificial Intelligence Ali Moonis, Paul Chung, Chris Hinde, 2003-08-02 The refereed proceedings of the 16th International Conference on Industrial and Engineering Applications of Artificial Intelligence and Expert Systems IEA AIE 2003 held in Loughborough UK in June 2003 The 81 revised full papers presented were carefully reviewed and selected from more than 140 submissions Among the topics addressed are soft computing fuzzy logic diagnosis knowledge representation knowledge management automated reasoning machine learning planning and scheduling evolutionary computation computer vision agent systems algorithmic learning tutoring systems and financial analysis Analytics and Data Science Amit V.
