

Solutions to Study Questions, Problems, and Cases

Chapter 1

1.1 The types of questions that can be answered include the following:

- Would an investment generate attractive returns?
- What is the degree of risk inherent in the investment?
- Should existing investment holdings be liquidated?
- Will cash flows be sufficient to service interest and principal payments to support the firm's borrowing needs?
- Does the company provide a good opportunity for employment, future advancement, and employee benefits?
- How well does this company compete in its operating environment?
- Is this firm a good prospect as a customer?

1.2 The SEC requires regular filing of Annual reports (10-K), quarterly reports (10-Q) and other reports dependent on particular circumstances, such as a change in auditor, bankruptcy, financial restatements, or other important events (all filed as 8-K reports).

1.3 The analyst should use the financial statements; the balance sheet, the income statement, the statement of stockholders' equity, and the statement of cash flows; the notes to the financial statements; supplementary information such as financial reporting by segments; the auditor's report; management's discussion and analysis of operating performance and financial condition; and the five-year summary of financial data.

Use the public relations "fluff," such as colored pictures and descriptive material with caution.

1.4 The SEC has the legal authority to write accounting rules in the United States, however, they choose to delegate writing rules, for the most part, to the FASB. The SEC plays a supportive role and at times will encourage FASB to write particular rules or make changes to policies.
