Communication N4 Paper 2 2013:

Media in Process Sai Felicia Krishna-Hensel, 2016-09-19 The post communist development of media systems has been uneven in the countries of the region Television and newspapers together with the emergence of social media have had great influence on the political debate in various countries Ownership of the media has been a factor in many instances The integration of traditionally isolated Central Eastern Europe into larger worldwide trends has fundamentally changed the way we look at the media in this region This volume proposes to address the transition of the media and communication industries in the contemporary period The contributions discuss among other things the obstacles that still remain for the media to play an effective watchdog role in the new democracies and whether the advent of the Internet and social media has helped or hindered the transformation to a powerful independent media The discussion further examines whether advertising agencies have targeted post communist citizens differently than those in Western European countries and if the media markets in the post communist region are fundamentally different than in Western Europe and North America A second focus of the volume is the media coverage of social issues like domestic violence which is intended to draw attention to these issues and influence policy in a more aware and open society This establishes the trend of post communist media following the example of western media practice The implications of the Central European media transformation for the newly transforming media markets in the post Soviet space suggest a new phase in the development of the medium The impact of global influences on regional expression is an important aspect of the political and social changes that are underway This volume makes an important interdisciplinary contribution in examining the development of the media

Resilience in the Pacific and the Caribbean Simon Hollis,2020-10-26 This book critically examines the global diffusion and local reception of resilience through the implementation of Disaster Risk Reduction DRR programmes in Pacific and Caribbean island states Global efforts to strengthen local disaster resilience capacities have become a staple of international development activity in recent decades yet the successful implementation of DRR projects designed to strengthen local resilience remains elusive While there are pockets of success a gap remains between global expectations and local realities Through a critical realist study of global and local worldviews of resilience in the Pacific and Caribbean islands this book argues that the global advocacy of DRR remains inadequate because of a failure to prioritise a person orientated ethics in its conceptualization of disaster resilience This regional comparison provides a valuable lens to understand the underlying social structures that makes resilience possible and the extent to which local governments communities and persons interpret and modify their behaviour on risk when faced with the global message on resilience This book will be of much interest to students of resilience risk management development studies and area studies
