Language and Intercultural Communication in the Workplace Hans J. Ladegaard, Christopher Jenks, 2018-04-19 From language classrooms to outdoor markets the workplace is fundamental to socialisation It is not only a site of employment where money is made and institutional roles are enacted through various forms of discourse it is also a location where people engage in social actions and practices The workplace is an interesting research site because of advances in communication technology cheaper and greater options for travel and global migration and immigration Work now requires people to travel over great geographical distances communicate with cultural others located in different time zones relocate to different regions or countries and conduct business in online settings The workplace is thus changing and evolving creating new and emerging communicative contexts This volume provides a greater understanding of workplace cultures particularly the ways in which working in highly interconnected and multicultural societies shape language and intercultural communication The chapters focus on critical approaches to theory and practice in particular how practice is used to shape theory They also question the validity and universality of existing models Some of the predominant models in intercultural communication have been criticised for being Eurocentric or Anglocentric and this volume proposes alternative frameworks for analysing intercultural communication in the workplace This book was originally published as a special issue of Language and Intercultural Communication
