An antigen is a substance that causes an immune response by stimulating the production of antibodies. When using latex agglutination to test for blood type, antibodies are in the test kit and the blood cells are the antigens. The antibodies agglutinate or clump the antigens. A person's blood type is determined by the antigens on their red blood cells. The antigens that are antibodies that clump together are:

Model 1 – Red Blood Cells and Antibodies

	Person with Blood Type A	Person with Blood Type B	Person with Blood Type AB	Person with Blood Type O
Cell with Surface Antigen
Antibody
Clumps in presence of Anti-A antibody
Clumps in presence of Anti-B antibody

1. Blood types in the human population are characterized by the presence or absence of antigens on the surface of the red blood cells.

a. Are any of the Model 1. cells among blood types not found in the human population?

b. Which antigen is used in Model 1. to represent an antigen?

c. What characteristics of type A and blood type B are type AB red blood cells?

making them important from the forensic point of view The molecular biology has provided a more reliable techniques of DNA fingerprinting which has revolutionized the forensic analysis of blood evidence in crime investigation and today it is possible to provide valuable information in cases where scarce or and degraded amount of crime scene material could have been a limiting factor Population studies and generation of DNA databases and quality systems are further advancements in the forensic investigation of blood evidence The blood analysis proves useful for the forensic serologist in establishing the reliability of the results in any court of law The Individualities of Human Blood Sanford Burton Hooker,1952 Atlas of Blood Cell Differentiation F.
